Protecting What You Value Most Through Estate Planning and Asset Protection

PROVIDING SOLUTIONS THAT SECURE AND ENHANCE YOUR WEALTH AND YOUR LEGACY

Everyone understands the benefits of having insurance to protect your assets from unanticipated events. Hazard and casualty insurance is necessary to provide protection from the risks of fire, floods, and wind damage. Liability insurance is necessary to provide protection from the risks of auto accidents and personal injury. But what can you do to protect your assets from claims in excess of your insurance or from risks of lawsuits or from unexpected business liabilities or from an overabundance of tax consequences? Fortunately having an asset protection plan in place can help insulate you from these potentially significant risks.

We believe in providing you with effective solutions so that you can have confidence that your assets and your legacy are protected. An effective asset protection plan needs to be in place before a lawsuit or claim is made against you, and well in advance of your retirement or death, so it is important to take the step toward greater protection today.

THE LEGAL DOCUMENTS THAT WILL SAVE YOU IN EMERGENCY SITUATIONS

COLLEGE BOUND KIDS- EXPECT THE UNEXPECTED!

So your child has officially become an adult and ready to embark on a new journey- college! Congratulations! This is a huge milestone in your teenager's life as well as a time of pride and concern for you as a loving parent. Your child is about to spread his or her wings leaving the family nest of security and safety.

What you need are eyes of a hawk in establishing a solid plan that will safeguard your teenager against any unexpected event that could place them in medical or financial peril. Though they may still be financially and emotionally dependent on you, your child is now an independent adult and your rights to make financial and medical decisions no longer exists, unless your child has legal documents prepared by a South Florida estate planning attorney who is familiar with the goals you wish to accomplish for your family. You must understand the importance of a healthcare surrogate, durable power of attorney, and living will.

The designation of a health care surrogate authorizes you to make medical decisions for your child. You will not even be able to obtain medical information once your child is 18 years old unless you have a document permitting you to do so. In some cases, your child may be unconscious and unable to permit the sharing of medical information since Florida's HIPPA laws prevent the dissemination without written directives authorizing the permission.

A durable power of attorney allows you to address your child's financial needs. It can be drafted to allow you to access your child's bank account in case you need to pay his or her bills, restrict spending, or replenish the account.

A living will is used to make known the desires regarding life-sustaining treatments. Although not the most palatable of topics, it will give you peace of mind with medical decisions you may have to make for your child in the event of an untimely illness or accident.

It's a Wild world. Are you protected?

Every American should have an estate plan in place but the need for comprehensive estate planning is even greater when you have children.

MAXIMIZE FINANCIAL AID THROUGH THE USE OF AN IRREVOCABLE TRUST

One strategic estate planning tool to consider is creating an irrevocable trust to assist in paying for your child's college education. Funds transferred to an irrevocable trust remain subject to trust terms and conditions until the established time for distribution. A trust can protect your child's college fund from creditor's demands. Also, an irrevocable trust has its own tax ID number and is not considered an asset when calculating your expected family contribution. Trust property is also excluded from the trustor's gross estate for federal tax purposes.

Additionally, a trust does not go through probate. Therefore, if a child needs money for school, she can access the funds immediately in the event of your death without being subjected to a lengthy and costly court process. Furthermore, a trust can be set up with restrictions regarding how and when your money will be distributed to your child.

How your trust is drafted and reported on FAFSA dictates the eligibility of your child for need-based financial aid. A common error is reporting the full value of the trust fund when there are proportional shares of ownership in the trust. Also, a typical mistake families make is reporting trust fund amounts incorrectly when ownership of the income and principal from the trust fund are split.

You should consult with your qualified and experienced South Florida estate planning attorney to review the terms of your existing trust to advise you as to what your options are under your trust or draft one for you to meet your objectives concerning your child's educational needs and goals.

There is a difference between "residence" and "domicile." A person can only have one domicile, but more than one residence in different states. So what is domicile? It is defined as actual residence within a particular state with the intention of making that state one's permanent home. Its really comes down to a factual finding of the intent of a person to make a particular state his or her domicile.

Pursuant to Florida Statute §222.17, a person can show intent to maintain a Florida residence as a permanent home by filing a sworn Declaration of Domicile with the clerk of the circuit court. Florida Statutes also provide some factors that manifest intent to retain Florida as a primary residence.

Ways to retain or establish domicile in Florida and take advantage of all its benefits is to purchase real estate in the Sunshine State. One should register to vote in Florida and vote at the next possible election. One should keep his or her Florida driver's license and plates. Having your will/trust drafted to comply with Florida law stating your domicile in Florida also evinces intent. It's important to spend a significantly greater portion of each year in Florida by being physically present in the state.

Finally, one should also consider establishing certain relationships with the state of Florida. Banking, religious, social, professional and medical relationships are more than a few examples. Also, keep your personal mailing address as a Florida address.

Calling Florida your "home sweet home" allows you to take advantage of the state's asset protection laws.

DID YOU KNOW?

The FTC issued a financial aid 'scam' warning to parents of college-bound teenagers. Here is some advice on how not to fall prey to phony, unsolicited offers for nonexistent scholarships.

Check out www.fastweb.com. It's a free and reputable online scholarship search engine to find legitimate scholarship opportunities. You can also try other credible websites or flip through a scholarship book that is less than one year old.

Also, you can check with your, your spouse's and even your parents' employers. Many have scholarship opportunities that nobody else is aware of.

Finally, plan ahead! The best plan for paying for college is to avoid having to scramble for private money in the first place. If you begin college funding planning when your student is in the 10th and 11th grade, the same time they begin their admissions preparation, you will integrate their plans with your financial needs.

THE MISER AND HIS GOLD

Once upon a time there was a Miser who used to hide his gold at the foot of a tree in his garden; but every week he used to go and dig it up and gloat over his gains.

A robber, who had noticed this, went and dug up the gold and decamped with it. When the Miser next came to gloat over his treasures, he found nothing but the empty hole. He tore his hair, and raised such an outcry that all the neighbors came around him, and he told them how he used to come and visit his gold.

"Did you ever take any of it out?" asked one of them. "Nay," said he, "I only came to look at it." "Then come again and look at the hole," said a neighbor; "it will do you just as much good."
